PRIVETT is a village and parish, 6 miles north-west from Petersfield station and 13 east from Winchester, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of East Meon, and union, petty sessional division and county court district of Petersfield, rural deanery of Petersfield and archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester. The church of The Holy Trinity, consecrated April, 1878, was built at the sole cost of William Nicholson esq. J.P. of Basing Park, from the designs of A. Blomfield esq. now Sir Arthur Blomfield, and is an exceedingly beautiful structure of flint, with Doulton stone dressings, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of four bays, aisles, transepts, north porch, a western tower and spire rising to the height of 160 feet and containing 8 bells: the exterior is enriched by many specimens of carving, including a statue of the present bishop of the diocese, Dr. E. H. Browne, which occupies a richly-carved niche upon the north side of the tower: the pavements throughout are of Italian mosaic marble; all the seats and fittings are of oak: all the chancel windows are stained and illustrate passages in the life of Our Lord: the altar cloth is a fine specimen of Belgian needlework: there are 240 sittings. The register dates from 1539. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value from tithe rent-charge £3, net £200, with residence, in the gift of William Nich[illegible]on esq. J.P. and held since 1873 by the Rev. John Fred[illegible]k Falwasser M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. Wil[illegible]m Nicholson esq. J.P. of Basing Park, is the chief landow[illegible]r. The soil is varied; on the chalk hills it is a loam and [illegible]ff clay, in the valleys it is a stiff clay; subsoil, chalk. [illegible]e chief crops are oats, wheat, barley and beans. # RINGWOOD.

NGWOOD is a parish and market town, head of a union, ndred, petty sessional division and county court district, th a station on the Southampton and Dorchester branch the South Western railway, and junction of the line to ristchurch and Bournemouth, 91 miles by road and 103 rail from London, 29 south-west from Winchester, 21 st from Southampton and 18½ from Salisbury, in the New rest division of the county, Fordingbridge and Ringwood unty court district and rural deanery of Fordingbridge stern division, and archdeaconry and diocese of Winches-. It was occupied by the Romans as a military post. 1685, James, Duke of Monmouth, after his defeat at the ttle of Sedgemoor, near Bridgwater, was brought to Ringod, having been captured at a place called "the Island," t far from this town. The town is pleasantly situated on e east branch of the river Avon, which contains salmon, e trout and other fish; the body of water in the river ing considerable, the meadows, lying low, are frequently erflowed. The town is lighted with gas.

The church of SS. Peter and Paul is a cruciform building of stone in mixed styles, consisting of nave, aisles, transepts, south porch, and an embattled central tower containing clock and 8 bells: it was apparently erected in the 13th century, but having gradually fallen into decay and being also much disfigured by modern additions, the body of the church, together with the transepts, was taken down in 1853, and reconstructed at a cost of £6,650; the chancel being also rebuilt at a cost of about £850, by the Provost and fellows of King's College, Cambridge, the patrons of the living; the entire east wall has been decorated with paintings intended to form part of a memorial to the family of the late Rev. John Keble M.A. vicar of Hursley and author of "The Christian Year," whose mother was a daughter of the Rev. John Maule, formerly vicar of this parish: the pulpit, of alabaster and oak, cost nearly £100: the presbytery has been paved with tiles designed by the Very Rev. Lord Alwyne Compton, dean of Worcester: the stained east window is a memorial to John Morant esq. (d. 1857) and was erected by his widow, Lady Caroline Augusta Morant, and her three sons; there are other memorial windows to the Rev. C. H. Maturin, a former vicar; Robert Davey esq. and his wife; two erected by the parishioners to the Rev. R. Holmes Tuck, a former vicar, and others to Stephen Street; Mary Jane Gosse Hamper; Thomas Dyer, deputy-adjutant-general; and other members of that family; and to Lady Caroline Augusta Morant, who died August 19th, 1877, erected by her son; the west window was given by Charles Castlemaine esq.: there is a mutilated brass effigy of a priest vested: the reredos, a memorial to the Rev. George Williams, late vicar, is of Derbyshire alabaster, Sicilian and Devonshire marbles, and gold mosaic: the font, of carved alabaster, is a memorial to the Rev. William Frederick Witt M.A. and was erected in 1885 by the parishioners, at a cost of £84. The registers date from 1561, and are in tolerably good condition. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Bisterne and the rectory of Harbridge annexed, tithe rent charge £1,377, joint net annual value £800, including 14 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of King's College, Cambridge, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Wm. Douglas Bodkin M.A. of that college.

Connected with the church there are charities of about the yearly value of £88, left by the following: Thomas Lyne, of Bradford Bryant, Wimborne, in 1621; Admiral Thomas Brown, of Hinton, who in 1667 gave an annuity from lands at Christchurch; John Dodington, in 1638, who left lands at Fordingbridge, now the property of Sir Edward Hulse, bart. by whom the rent-charge is paid to the parishes in succession. Christopher Garrett in 1621 gave an annuity of 20s. for clothing, from a farm called "Bradford farm;" John Lyne gave money for a monthly sermon, and for the poor out of an estate called "Waterman's." Benefactions were also left by Richard Lyne, in 1722; Jane Burch, in 1660 and 1672; William Clarke, of this town, in 1833, and the widow of William Baldwin, of Ringwood, in 1844.

Here are Wesleyan, Baptist, Unitarian and Congregational chapels: the latter, built in 1866, to hold 500 persons, on a site presented by Messrs. Carter, at a cost of about £2,000, is a building of white brick with stone dressings, and has two turrets.

The Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1873, is a building of red brick faced with Bath stone, in the Gothic style, capable of holding 200 persons, and having a vestry and schoolroom attached.

The Cemetery, at the south-east end of the town, was consecrated on the first of January, 1864, and comprises about five acres, two of which are for the Church of England and the remainder for Nonconformists: there are two mortuary chapels, of Swanage and Bath stone, in the Gothic style, with bell turrets, and connected by a corridor, from the centre of which rises a spire, 80 feet high: near the entrance gates is a porter's lodge: the cemetery is under the control of a burial board of nine members.

The late William Clarke, a brewer of this town, left in 1833, £2,100 for the erection of six almshouses for twelve poor persons of Ringwood over forty years of age; as well as the interest of £2,500 for the support of the occupants, each of whom receives ten shillings each on the first Monday in each month; he further left the interest of £200 to keep the building in repair: the almshouses were erected in the year 1843.

The Town Hall, situated in the market place and erected in 1868, at the expense of John Morant esq. is a building of red brick with Bath stone dressings; over the principal entrance is a balcony, resting on elaborately carved stone-work, in the centre of which are the arms of the Mor family: the building contains a magistrates' meeting roo where the petty sessions are held; and a Corn Exchan with ante-rooms, library and reading rooms.

The Lecture Hall, situated in Christchurch street, erected in 1874, from designs by Messrs. Kemp-Welch Reynolds, of Salisbury, is a building of white and colou brick in the Gothic style, and will hold 600 persons: it presented by Miss Carter, a resident, for the free use of town, at a cost of about £2,000; and comprises read rooms, library of about 1,000 volumes, and lecture room.

In 1887 a drinking fountain was erected in the Mar place at a cost of about £100, raised by public subscripti In 1888 a theatre was built in Southampton street by E Richards Morant esq. of Manor House; it is of iron c struction and will hold 400 persons.

There is a manufactory for making linen collars a cuffs, employing many females; the manufacture of peculiar kind of knitted woollen gloves, now well known the "Ringwood" gloves, also gives employment to number of females at their homes in this town and in neighbouring villages: an extensive business is carried here by Messrs. Joseph J. Armfield and Co. millwrights a agricultural implement makers; and there are also ste saw mills and two breweries: this town has been somewh noted for its strong beer, but this trade has considera declined.

A market for corn, cattle and pigs is held on Wednesd and a repository cattle sale every other Wednesday; a the fairs are on the 10th of July and 11th of December.

The Manor House, the property of Hay Richards Mora esq. is pleasantly situated north of the town.

Avon Castle, the seat of John Edmund Unett Phillips Turner-Turner esq. J.P. is a building of Purbeck sto completed in 1878, and is situated on the banks of the ri Avon, about 2½ miles south of Ringwood: it is surround by picturesque grounds, and the natural undulations the hills behind it, combined with the water and the woo form a prospect seldom surpassed; it occupies the site the former residence, which together with the proper was purchased several years ago by the late Mr. Turn Turner from the Earl of Normanton, whose property adjoins.

The principal landowners are J. Morant esq. who is lo of the manor; John Mills esq. J.P. of Bisterne, the Earl Normanton and John Edmund Unett Phillipson Turne Turner esq. J.P.

The courts-leet are held at Lady day and Michaelmas, which a high constable and other officers are chosen.

The soil is partly light and part heavy; subsoil grav The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, turnips and swede The area of the parish of Ringwood is 10,144 acres of la and 221 of water; rateable value, £20,298; the populati in 1881 was 3,830, including 57 officers and inmates in t workhouse; the population of the town alone is abo 2,400.

BISTERNE is a chapelry annexed to the parish of Rin wood, and will be found under a separate head.

CROWE is a hamlet, 2 miles south-east; here is a Wesley chapel.

KINGSTON hamlet is 2 miles south-east; here is a Congr gational chapel with schools attached.

POULNER hamlet, 1¼ miles north-east, is on the Soutl ampton road, and contains a Baptist chapel. Other plac in the parish are Ashley, Wattensford and Moortown.

Parish Clerk and Sexton, James Dawkins.

ROCKBOURNE (or ROCKBURNE) is a parish and village on the Wiltshire border, 9 miles south-west from Salisbury and 3 north-west from Fordingbridge station, in the New Forest division of the county, hundred, union and county court district of Fordingbridge, petty sessional division of Ringwood, rural deanery of Fordingbridge western division, and archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient structure of flint in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave of two bays, south aisle, south porch, and a western tower of wood, containing 3 bells and a clock: there are monuments to Sarah Coote, 1795; Henry Longden, 1793, and his wife Elizabeth, 1792: the chancel was rebuilt in 1827, at the cost of Lady Coote: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from about 1561. The living is a donative, gross yearly value from tithe rent-charge £705, including 20 acres of glebe, with house, in the gift of John Ratcliffe esq. and held since 1875 by the Rev. Richard Pyper M.A. of Downing College, Cambridge, J.P. Here is a Baptist chapel. A village club with reading room was erected in 1885 for the benefit of the inhabitants and in memory of the late Rev. W. J. Yonge, 51 years rector of this parish, by his daughters, the Misses M. E. and T. Yonge. Contiguous to the church are the extensive ruins of some monastic establishment, now a farmhouse, in the occupation of Mr. Christopher Pinniger. West Park, the estate of Eyre Coote esq. and tenanted by Charles Frederic Wood esq. contains a lofty column erected to the memory of two distinguished members of that family, the inscription on which is now obliterated. The Earl of Shaftesbury, who is lord of the manor, Edgar John Egremont esq. and Eyre Coote esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is of a mixed character—sand, clay, gravel and chalk; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 3,885 acres; rateable value, £2,831; the population in 1881 was 456.

BRICKILN is a hamlet 1½ miles south-west; Sandhill Heath is 2 miles south-west.

ROMSEY.

ROMSEY is a municipal borough, market and union town, station on the London and South Western railway, and junction of the lines to Andover and Southampton, head of county court district and petty sessional division, 81 miles from London, 11 south-west from Winchester, 7 north-west from Southampton, 15 south-east from Salisbury, in the New Forest division of the county, hundred of King's Somborne, rural deanery of Romsey and Winchester archdeaconry and diocese, on the river Test. The town is governed by a mayor, four aldermen and 12 burgesses, who form the urban sanitary authority; the borough has a commission of the peace; it is paved and lighted with gas.

The gas works, situated in Love lane, were established in 1833, by a company at a cost of £2,000; subsequent additions have increased the outlay to £7,000.

The water supply is obtained from works situated at Michelmersh, the property of the South Hants Water Co. about 2½ miles north of Romsey.

There is a stream of water running immediately through the town which divides Romsey Infra and Romsey Extra. This stream branches from the river Test at Greatbridge and is said to have been made by Oliver Cromwell's soldiers for the watering of his cavalry.

A canal, passing through Romsey, formerly existed between Andover and Redbridge: but the Andover and Redbridge railway has been made principally upon the bed of the canal: those portions of it not used by the railway remain open for the drainage of the adjoining lands.

Romsey is a town of great antiquity, being traced to the possession of the Romans during their rule in Britain. Many antiquaries have supposed that its origin and rise are to be dated only from the foundation of the Abbey, but Dr. Stukely, after very deep research, has felt justified in classing it as a Roman city, under the name of "Arminis;" the Doctor is of opinion that this name was not long retained, for when its precise situation became known it was termed "Romana Insula" (the Roman Island): it should here be stated that the ancient town and abbey of Romsey really stood upon an island, one side of which was, and still is, washed by the river Test, whilst the other was bounded by a stream, now partly arched in, running along Church street, and forming a junction with the Test near Broadlands. A modern writer, Mr. Spence, in an "Essay on the Abbey Church of Romsey," somewhat favours the position assumed by Dr. Stukely, and observes in support of it—"When we regard the situation of Romsey, we find that it is nearly equi-distant from Sorbiodunum (Old Sarum), Brige (Broughton), Venta Belgarum (Winchester), and Clausentum (adjoining Southampton): these were stations of acknowledged importance, between which much intercourse must have been maintained, and it would have been next to an impossibility for the Roman legions in their marches between Clausentum and either of the two first-mentioned places to have avoided the site of this town." A valley more beautiful, or a fairer island than that of Romsey, could hardly be found, and, as the same writer observes, "it would be no small reflection on the known good taste of the Romans to imagine that they would neglect a spot so favoured;" if, however, any doubt on the subject remained, it would be at once set at rest by a reference to the journal of the British Archæological Association, wherein a description is given of some Roman coins found in 1845 at Abbotswood, a place adjoining the town. In the Domesday Survey the abbey is described as the "Abbey de Rome-syg."

The town is divided into two distinct parishes, distinguished as "Infra" and "Extra." The municipal borough comprises the Infra and part of the Extra: in civil matters they are entirely distinct, but for purposes ecclesiastical they are united. A campanile formerly stood on land now called "Belfrey Ground." The church of St. Lawrence was the north aisle of the minster. It cannot be pretended that Romsey, at any time during its existence—at least prior to the Reformation—ranked as a place of any importance, or was ever known or distinguished apart from its stately abbey. The church of the original convent, founded by Edward the Elder was undoubtedly built of wood. The existing stone abbey church could not have been built earlier than A.D. 1100, the foundation being probably laid by Henry I. when he came to fetch his bride, "Maud the Good," who was educated at the convent under her aunt, Christina Athelyng. The church was certainly completed about A.D. 1150, when Mary, daughter of King Stephen was abbess, who is mentioned below. This venerable building, which has been restored, without in any way destroying its original character, presents a valuable specimen of the architecture of the early ages: according to the most reliable information it was founded by Edward the Elder, son of Alfred the Great: the original institution was in all probability small, and very scantily endowed, and it was not until Edgar, the grandson of Edward, ascended the throne, that its rise fairly commenced; this prince having secured himself against the Danes, turned his attention to the ecclesiastical establishments, which he declared "to the outward sight were nothing but worm-eaten and rotten lumber:" assisted by Dunstan, afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury, he effected a complete reform throughout his dominions. With reference to Romsey, according to Stowe, the abbey was solemnly "confirmed by King Edgar, in the presence of all the nobilitie, on Christmas Day, 974." In a monkish chronicle, said to be that of one Peter de Langtoft, King Edgar, and the foundation of this Benedictine order of nuns, are thus referred to:—

"Mikille he wirschiped God and served our Lady
The Abbey of Rumege he feffed richely
With rents full gode and kirkes of pris
He did ther in of Nunnes a hundredth ladies."

The first abbess was Morwenna, a lady of noble origin and great piety, who was succeeded by Elwina: during the ministry of this abbess, the Danes, headed by Sweyn, effected a landing, and proceeded direct to the monastery, which they pillaged: by some agency the abbess is said to have received brief warning of the invaders' approach, so that a speedy flight to Winchester saved the nuns and the "holy relics:" several other ladies of high rank succeeded, but nothing important transpired until Mary, youngest daughter of King Stephen, sister of William, Count of Boulogne, became abbess: this lady it was of whom Henry II. made such notable use in checking the arrogance of Thomas à Becket: the king seems to have struck boldly at the root of the prelate's "mysterious and superstitious supremacy," by declaring a total disregard of monastic vows; with this view he incited Matthew of Alsace, son of the count of Flanders, to woo and marry the abbess of Romsey, without resorting to the Pope for any dispensation; this Count Matthew actually succeeded in doing, and backed by Henry, set at defiance Becket, the Chancellor of England, the Archbishop of Rheims, and the whole church. The monastery seems to have pursued a very even and quiet course under one abbess and another, nothing noteworthy happening until Amicia—a most energetic lady, and doubtless a strict disciplinarian—became the ruler; on commencing her sway, this lady, probably arguing that it was useless issuing mandates unless she had means to enforce their observance, looked around for the means of punishment in case of any disobedience, and discovered to her dismay that not only had the public gallows disappeared, but that the right of the abbess to condemn and hang had become obsolete: in this extremity she actually petitioned the king (Henry III.) for restitution of the "privilege;" and the Royal Letters Patent, dated 47 Henry III. re-granting the coveted authority, are to be found on the roll of royal grants; the abbess also procured the charter for holding a fair: the last abbess was Elizabeth Ryprose: she surrendered the monastery to Henry VIII. in 1539, at which time its revenue amounted to £528 8s. 10½d: with trifling exceptions these high-born ladies presided over the convent committed to their keeping with honour and credit; and they were held in such esteem that the nobles of the land were glad that their children should be sheltered within the walls of the abbey; and so highly was it esteemed for sanctity and the estimable character of its inmates, that it was considered one of the best establishments for the education and culture of the female mind. Christina, sister of Edgar Atheling, lived and died here, as abbess. Robert of Glo'ster notifies her entry thus:—

"Edgar Athelyng,
That rygt eye was of England, and kunde to be king,
Made his yonge suster, as God gef that cas, Nunne of the hous of Romeseye, Christyne hyre name was."

It was to this lady's care that Maud, daughter of Malcolm Canmore, King of Scotland, was intrusted, whose subsequer marriage with Henry I. was designed to unite the Saxon an Norman races, and set at rest for ever the animosities b which each in turn was moved.

The stately abbey church may be said to vie with any i England in point of antiquity and the diversity and purit of its architecture: with this, as with other edifices of th like nature, the early portions of the building are Nor man, in imitation of the architecture introduced by th Romans, and may be said to be that which prevailed fror their departure to the time of Henry II. when the styl known as the Early English came into vogue; of course during this period deviations may have occurred; and doubt less, immediately after the Conquest, the rapid import c talent into England very much tended to the expansion an improvement of the designs.

The register of the abbey church has an entry—"tha one William Morris, a soldier" (under Cromwell) "wa hanged" (supposed for pilfering) "on the Swan sign post 13th March, 1644;" this iron work is to be seen, and in it original place, in the Market square.

The church of SS. Mary and Ethelfleda is a cruciform building of stone, in the Norman, Early English, and late styles, but mainly of pure and grand Norman work: th transepts and choir, with the exception of the upper eastern windows, are of undoubted Norman: a large portion o the nave is of the same character: the western end (probably an addition) is regarded as a fair specimen of th Early English: there are three stained windows inserted i the western lancets to the memory of Viscount Palmerston at a cost of £1,200, raised by public subscription: there are also many remarkably fine specimens of the Decorated style which came into use shortly after the death of Edward I and these are the more valuable, as showing how fine were the first attempts of our forefathers at that mode of "elegant enrichment" which now adorns this magnificent grade o architecture. The foundations of a beautiful Lady Chape in the same Early Decorated style have been discovered by the vicar: this chapel must have been built at the end o Edward the First's reign, A.D. 1305: the only remains of it above ground are those portions of shafts and groinings which are attached to the old walls, and the two fine eastern windows, which on the destruction of the chapel after the Reformation were transferred to and inserted in the two Norman archways which formerly led into it from the ambulatory: these windows have been restored: within the above mentioned foundations were also discovered at the same time those of the original Norman chapel, of smaller dimensions: it was rectangular, and not apsidal, as had been supposed: the tower, rising from the intersection of the nave, choir and transept, is heavy Norman, and rises very little above the original pitch of the roof: the dwarfish appearance of this tower was some years since sought to be amended by the erection of a woodwork frame; something in the form it presents might pass as a hen-coop on the deck of a seagoing vessel, but perched on the summit of this beautiful abbey it can be regarded in no other light than that of a disfigurement and an eye-sore: it contains 8 bells, and a clock on the east wall: unlike most cathedrals and abbeys, this building has no western entrance, whether it originally had any or not is not known, but the impression is that it was always much circumscribed as regards means of entrance and exit: a southern entrance has been reopened which formerly led into the cloisters: the work of this doorway is so unlike the interior, while it resembles the Norman so much, that many think it to be the work of French artists: here is preserved at least one interesting relic, doubtless the work of the hands of the nuns; this is a beautiful cope, afterwards converted into an altar cloth; it is of green brocaded velvet, richly adorned with stars worked in gold: there was formerly another cloth of a like but more valuable description, but this has disappeared. During the last year very great improvements have been effected, notably the entire removal of the pews and galleries; of the latter, that in the north transept contained a fine organ, built in 1858, which has been removed to the chancel and greatly enlarged: the 32 feet pedal pipes, with several other new stops, most of which are erected in the triforium, together with all the original stops below, combine to make this one of the finest organs in the county. Among other improvements is the raising the communion table by another pace or step, and the restoration of the ancient altar slab of Purbeck marble, which since the Reformation had been desecrated by using it as a paving stone. Upon a step now placed at the entrance of the choir, a most interesting oak screen of the 14th century has been erected; this was originally the upper part of of the screen which divided the north transept (when it became part of the lay church in 1372) from the body of the building. It is very satisfactory to be able to announce that all the four east Decorated windows will in a few months be filled with stained glass; the two lower ones in the retro-choir (one finished), by Bell, are given by Richard Foster sq. in memory of the late Mr. Footner: the two upper windows will cost £1,000 or £1,200, and will be erected by subscription in memory of the much lamented Lord Mount-Temple. It is contemplated and promised by the vicar to remove the ugly wooden covering of the bells on the top of the tower, which is like a gigantic meat-safe, and to replace it by a Norman pyramidal roof, such as may be seen in some of the old churches of South Germany. A grant in aid has just (1889) been made by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners towards the erection of very handsome choir stalls: this work, which is being carried out by the vicar at the Berthon Boat works, is very good, and as it follows the unique design of the old oak screen mentioned above, it will have on its thirty panels a series of heads carved in oak representing kings, queens and bishops more or less connected with Romsey and its then rich convent, from Edward the Elder downward: the chancel and choir are repaved with tiles re-cast by Minton & Co. to correspond with the original tiles of the 12th century still in the abbey, which are handsome. The original deed of transfer is in good preservation. The registers date from the year 1569, and all are in good condition. The living is a vicarage, value £365, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Winchester, and held since 1860 by the Rev. Edward Lyon Berthon M.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge, and rural dean of Romsey.

At WOODLEY, 1¾ miles east, is a chapel-of-ease to Romsey parish church, erected in 1859: it is a plain brick building with tiled roof and small wooden west spire and north porch.

At LEE, 2 miles south, is a chapel-of-ease to Romsey parish church, and served from thence; it was erected in 1862, by the late Lord Palmerston: it is a building of red and white brick, with slated roof, with apse chancel and south porch.

At RIDGE, 2 miles south-west, is a school, erected in 1875 by the late Right Hon. Lord Mount-Temple and now belonging to the Hon. Evelyn Ashley: it is a building of red brick, with tiled roof, south porch and small wooden spire, and was formerly used as a chapel-of-ease to Romsey parish church and in the week days as a school.

The Wesleyan chapel, in The Hundred, was erected at a cost of £1,750 in 1883, is a red brick building with stone dressings, in the Gothic style, having sittings for 300; it has extensive class and school rooms behind.

The Abbey Congregational church, was founded in 1662 by the Rev. Thomas Warren M.A. the ejected rector of Houghton, near Romsey. The church has always maintained an influential position, and some of its ministers have been men of reputation: Dr. James Bennett, an eminent Congregational scholar and divine, and the Rev. John Reynolds, son of Dr. Henry Revell Reynolds, physician-in-ordinary to George III. were both ministers at Romsey. In May, 1888, a new church, of considerable architectural merit, was opened for worship; the style is Perpendicular Gothic; an archway, taking the place of the old abbey gateway, connected by a turret with the main building, forms a striking and picturesque feature: it has seating accommodation for nearly 700: the architects are Messrs. Bonella and Paull, of Chancery lane, London W C; the total cost has been £9,000, which includes a valuable organ: connected with the church are a manse, a large hall, seating 400, commodious class rooms and a church keeper's house.

The Baptist chapel, situated in Bell street, is a plain red brick building, erected in 1811, and will seat 250 persons; extensive class and school room are now (1889) being erected in connection with it.

The Primitive Methodist chapel is a plain red brick building, situated in The Hundred, and was erected in 1845 and will seat about 150 persons.

A Cemetery, comprising 3 acres, situated at Whitenap Hill about 1 mile east, with 2 mortuary chapels, was consecrated in 1857 by the Bishop of Winchester, and is under the control of a burial board of 18 members. The cost of land and formation was about £3,000.

There are six almshouses in Middle Bridge street, erected in 1809, by John Bartlett esq. of Romsey, who by deed gave to the trustees six messuages and gardens upon trust to permit six single women to live therein, being either natives of the parish of Romsey Infra or Romsey Extra, or parishioners or residents within those parishes, or one of them, for 20 years, and who should not receive, or ever have received, relief from any parish, but should be persons who had seen better days: and the said John Bartlett, by his will, dated 1815, gave to the said trustees £6,700 3 per cent. (now 2¾) Consols in trust to apply the dividends thereof for the maintenance of the said almshouses and the six women from time to time to be placed there: the present value of the income is £182 5s.: each inmate receives 12s. per week. There are also four almshouses, erected in 1692 by John Kent esq. of Romsey, who in 1688 gave to the corporation four dwelling-houses, with the appurtenances, in Middle Bridge street, Romsey, upon trust for the benefit of the poor people of the said town for ever: the said John Kent by codicil to his will also gave £250, with which sum and £150 of their own money the corporation purchased certain lands in Romsey, which were conveyed to them upon trust: each inmate receives 2s. 6d. per week: the almshouses were rebuilt in 1882: in addition £125 from various charities is distributed yearly.

The Town Hall, a lofty structure, built of red brick, with Bath stone dressings, erected in 1866, is situated at the corner of Bell street, in the Market place: here are held the county court, magistrates', commissioners and other public meetings: there is likewise a reading-room with library of 1,500 volumes, in connection with the Romsey Reading Society, which now (1889) has 100 members. During the winter session courses of lectnres are given, with readings and musical entertainments.

The Corn Exchange, erected in 1864, the capital being raised partly by subscription and partly by shares, occupies a prominent position between the two market places: the building is used as an auction room and for occasional public meetings, and is the head-quarters and drill room of the D Co. of the 1st Volunteer Battalion of the Hampshire Regiment. In the principal market place is a fine bronze statue of Viscount Palmerston, by Noble: it was erected in 1867 by public subscription.

A drinking fountain, presented to the town, by the late Lord Mount-Temple, in 1886, stands opposite the front entrance to the Corn Exchange.

The market day is Thursday, and a large market is held every alternate Thursday. Three fairs are held—Easter Tuesday, August 26th and November 8th for horses and cattle. There are tan-yards, breweries, corn mills, iron works. jam makers' works and a paper mill. The Berthon Boat Building Company, have extensive works in Porter's Bridge street, and employ a large number of hands. One newspaper is published here, "The Romsey Register," fortnightly, Thursday.

Broadlands, the seat of the Hon. Anthony Evelyn Melbourne Ashley J.P. is a noble structure, with lofty porticoes over the principal entrances: it stands in the midst of a park of 400 acres, embellished with cedars and elms of unusual size and beauty: the pleasure grounds extend to the river Test, which flows through the estate: this was the favourite residence of the great statesman, Viscount Palmerston K.G.; the present owner is the step-grandson of the late Lord Palmerston: the old mansion, which belonged to the St. Barbe family, and was visited by James I. is no longer visible from the outside, having been inclosed by additions commenced in 1770 (by the second Viscount Palmerston): the park is close to the town, and is, by permission of the owner, used for festival gatherings of the various schools, friendly societies and other institutions of the town and neighbourhood.

The principal landowners are the Hon. Anthony Evelyn Melbourne Ashley J.P. who is lord of the manor, and John Willis Fleming's trustees.

The area is, including 93 acres of land—of Romsey Extra, 9,861 acres; Romsey Infra, 355 acres; rateable value of Romsey Extra, £17,842; of Romsey Infra, £7,004; the population in 1881 was, of Romsey Extra, 3,549, including 106 officers and inmates in the workhouse; Romsey Infra, 2,030; the latter comprises the municipal borough.

Ashfield, 1½ miles south-east, Cupernham, 1 mile north-east, Lee, 2 south, Toothill, 1¾ south-east, Woodley, 1¼ north-east, are in Romsey Extra.

Parish Clerk & Sacristan, Charles Holloway.

OPLEY, 4 miles east from New Alresford, 11 east-by-orth from Winchester and 54 from London, with a station miles north-west from the village, on the London and South estern railway, is a large ecclesiastical parish, containing veral small scattered hamlets, of which LYEWAY, THE SOKE, CHARLWOOD and MONKWOOD are the principal, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Bishop's Sutton, Alresford union, Alresford district of the Winchester petty sessional division, Winchester county court district, rural deanery of Old Alresford and archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester. Previous to July, 1882, Ropley was annexed to Bishop's Sutton for ecclesiastical purposes, but by an order in council August, 1882, it is now a separate parish. The church of St. Peter is an old, plain, dilapidated and inconvenient structure of flint, consisting of chancel, chancel aisles, nave of two bays, south porch and a square conical-roofed wooden tower containing a clock and 5 bells: it was repaired and enlarged in 1848; there are 320 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £220, with residence, in the gift of Miss Helen Tanner, and held by the Rev. Thomas Woodhouse M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford, who had held the joint living since 1871, continuing to be vicar of Ropley alone. LBORNE is a village and parish pleasantly situated a sheltered vale, 4½ miles south-east-by-east from Alton tion, in the Eastern division of the county, upper half ndred of Selborne, Alton petty sessional division, union l county court district, rural deanery of Alton western ision, and archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester. The urch of St. Mary is an ancient building of Selborne rock l Woolmer sandstone, consisting of chancel, nave (Late rman), south aisle (Early English), north transept corated), north aisle (modern), western tower with 5 bells: altar-piece is supposed to be by Mabuse; it is of the Early rman or Flemish school, representing the Adoration of Magi, and was presented by Benjamin White in 1793: church was restored in 1877 at a cost of about £1,000, l again in 1883 at a cost of £1,400; an organ added in 1888 a cost of £300: here is a tablet to the Rev. Gilbert White, hor of "The Natural History of Selborne," who was born e in 1720, and lies interred in the churchyard: the south e was restored in 1883; its east wall and most of the th wall were rebuilt; every feature has been exactly reced; and the old surface of the stonework, except where itewashed, has been left, as far as possible, untouched; taking down the work, jambs of old windows were disered in situ, together with pieces of tracery heads built the rebuilt parts, and these have been reconstructed in place of the two modern windows; the work has been ried out under the direction of Mr. William White F.S.A. grand-nephew of the great naturalist, of Selborne: in 8 the east end of chancel was rebuilt and a new Early glish three-light window inserted; the stained glass with ich it was filled was given in memory of the Rev. Frederick nes Parsons, then vicar: there are 400 sittings. The ister dates from 1539. The living is a vicarage; tithes mmuted at £784 yearly, net value £400, with residence and 17 acres of glebe, in the gift of the President and Fellows of Magdalen College, Oxford, and now (1889) vacant. Here is a Congregational chapel. Selborne depôt of the Protestant Evangelistic Mission, John Alexander, hon. sec. There is a charity of £8 10s. yearly value, now £27, arising from land in the parish, which is applied to the National School. A great portion of Woolmer Forest is in this parish. At the time of the Domesday survey Selborne was held in royal demesne. A priory of Black Canons was founded here in 1233 by Peter de Rupibus, Bishop of Winchester; it was subsequently suppressed, and became part of the endowment of Magdalen College, Oxford. The President and Fellows of Magdalen College, Oxford, are lords of the manor, and with Henry John Dutton esq. who is lord of the manor of Oakhanger and the Earl of Selborne, are the principal landowners. The soil within the parish is, in succession from the summit level of the hills westward to Woolmer Forest eastward, chalk; black and white malm, with rock of the upper greensand formation below; gault clay; and lower greensand. The chief crops are wheat and barley, and hops are grown here. The area, including Blackmoor, is 7,819 acres of land and 97 of water; rateable value, £6,156; the population in 1881 was 1,215, including Blackmoor.

Parish Clerk, Timothy Loe.

BLACKMOOR is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1867 out of Selborne: it is 3 miles south-east from Selborne and 4 north from Liss railway station. The church of St. Matthew is a handsome Gothic stone building, erected in 1868, at a cost (including all internal fittings) of about £10,000, the whole of which sum was given by Earl Selborne, who also provided £140 a year towards the endowment, the remainder being supplied by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners and Queen Anne's Bounty: Mr. Waterhouse was the architect, and

Mr. Thomas Kemp the builder: it consists of chancel, nave (which is capable of enlargement), south porch, western tower with one pinnacle, and has a peal of 6 bells and a clock: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1869. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £218, with residence, in the gift of Earl of Selborne, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Edward Denison Lear B.A. Keble College, Oxford. Blackmoor House, the seat of the Right Hon. the Earl of Selborne P.C., F.R.S., D.C.L. is a modern mansion, situated on an eminence below the eastern slope of the hills, the grounds of which command a fine view of the surrounding country; his lordship, formerly an eminent equity counsel (Roundell Palmer Q.C.) and Lord Chancellor 1872-1874, 1880-1885, takes his title from this place. The area is 5,400 acres; the population in 1881 was 609.

Parish Clerk, John Cozens.

SHEDFIELD or Shidfield is an ecclsiastical district and tithing, formed in 1829 from the parish of Droxford, 2½ miles from Botley station and 5 miles north from Fareham, in the Eastern division of the county, the hundred and county court district of Bishop's Waltham, union and petty sessional division of Droxford, rural deanery of Bishop's Waltham, and archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester. The church of St. John the Baptist, erected in 1875 and consecrated March 24th, 1880, is a handsome structure of Swanage stone with Bath stone dressings, in a modern Gothic style, the interior being faced with pale local bricks; it consists of chancel, nave, south porch, south aisle and transept; and an organ chamber in the north transept has been added at a cost of £300, as a memorial to the late Sir Thomas S. Pasley bart. K.C.B. who resided at Moorhill: there are sittings for 400 persons, all free and unappropriated: the tower is embattled and with pinnacles: the total cost of the church up to the present (1889) has been £8,000. The old church tower still stands in the churchyard. Some common land which had been added to the churchyard, was consecrated by the Bishop of Winchester on March 27th, 1867: a memorial brass to Henry William Franklyn is affixed to the porch and there are three stained windows. Devereux Wiggett Chute M.A. of University College, Oxford. The noble mansion known as the Vyne is the seat of Chaloner William Chute esq. M.A., J.P. and is said to have derived its name from vines planted here or from the Roman Vindomis ; it was for many years the principal residence of the ancient family of Sandys, both before and after they were raised to the peerage in 1523 : during the Commonwealth the manor and mansion passed, by purchase, from that family to that of Chaloner Chute esq. an ancestor of the present proprietor: the building is of considerable dimensions : there is a gallery panelled with the arms of distinguished families of the time of Henry VIII. : attached to the house is an ancient domestic chapel, containing curiously carved stalls ; the east windows are filled with beautiful stained glass ; the floor is decorated with tiles, from Urbino, each of them having a figure, motto, or device upon it : adjoining the chapel is the mausoleum, erected by J. Chute esq. the friend of Gray and Horace Walpole, in which there is a recumbent marble monument (by Banks) of his ancestor, Chaloner Chute esq. in his robes as Speaker of the House of Commons: the park, though not extensive, is diversified with hill, dale, wood and water, and abounds with fine old oak and other excellent timber. Beaurepaire Park, the residence of Alfred Welch-Thornton esq. was formerly in the possession of the Brocas family, and is an ancient mansion, surrounded by a moat, standing in a well-timbered park of about 280 acres of this and Bramley parish; A. Welch-Thornton esq. is now the owner of the estate. Chaloner W. Chute esq. is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is part clay and part chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 3,960 acres of land and 12 water; rateable value, £4,582; population in 1881 was 6

SILCHESTER is a parish and village, 3½ miles west from the Mortimer station of the Great Western railway, 8 north-west from Basingstoke, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Holdshot, Basingstoke petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Basingstoke north-eastern division, archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, on the Berkshire border of the county. The church of St. Mary is a building of flint and stone, in the Norman and Early English styles, consisting of chancel with open timbered roof, divided from the nave by a finely carved oak screen, nave of two bays, aisles, north wooden Perpendicular porch and a wooden tower containing 5 bells: the chancel was restored in 1872 and the remainder of the church in 1878: there are two piscinæ, one in the south aisle, and one in the chancel: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, gross commuted tithe rent-charge value £424, net £200, with 54 acres of glebe and house, in the patronage of the Duke of Wellington, and held since 1880 by the Rev. Thomas Langshaw B.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Hyde's Charity consists of £14, derived from a house and land and funded property, distributed in money twice yearly by the rector and churchwardens. Within the parish are situated the ruins of the Caer Segont, or the city of the Segontiaci and the Seguntium of the Romans: these remains are a mile and a half in circumference: the walls on the south-east are the most perfect, being in some places nearly 12 feet high: during the contests between the defending Britons and the invading Danes, Silchester fell into the hands of the latter, who massacred the whole of its inhabitants, and levelled the city to the ground: it was never rebuilt, and at the present time the only buildings within its boundaries are a farm-house and its appurtenances and a small but ancient parish church, the remainder being divided into five fields, the surface of which, in dry weather, points out plainly the direction of the ancient streets. Extensive excavations, disclosing the remains of the ancient city, have been and are now being made, at the expense of the Duke of Wellington and under the direction of the Rev. Horace G. Monro M.A. rector of Stratfieldsaye: the coins found date from A.D. 37 to A.D. 405; about 300 yards from the north-east angle of the city is an ancient amphitheatre. Silchester Hall, the seat of Captain Boteler Lloyd, stands in its own grounds of about 90 acres, which are undulating and tastefully laid out, commanding park-like views, and adjoins the excavations on the site of the old city. The common land consists of 195 acres. The Duke of Wellington is lord of the manor and principal landowner; but part of the land belongs to Captain E. Boteler Lloyd and the Cooper and Davis families, and others. The soil is clay and gravel; the subsoil is clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 1,945 acres; rateable value, £2,141; the population in 1881 was 472.

SOBERTON is a parish and large scattered village, 5 miles east from Bishop's Waltham the nearest railway station, 15 south-west from Petersfield, in the Eastern division of the county, lower half of the hundred of Meon Stoke, Droxford petty sessional division and union, Bishop's Waltham county court district, rural deanery of Bishop's Waltham, and archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, situated on the river Meon. The church of St. Peter is a building of stone, in the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular styles: the building was restored in 1842: it consists of chancel, nave of five bays, south transept, south porch, and lofty embattled western tower containing 8 bells and clock: there are several ancient monuments dating from 1580, and a memorial to a daughter of Dr. Walter Curle, Bishop of Winchester, dated 1709: on the western front of the tower, and in the centre of the string-course beneath the parapet, there is a device of a death's head, having the head of a man with a key on one side, and the head of woman, with a pail, on the other; in explanation of this device, which has often perplexed the curious, it may be stated, that in the family of Anson, the celebrated circumnavigator who had an estate and manor house at Soberton, there lived for many years a butler and dairymaid, who had each saved a considerable sum of money through a long course of industrious service; they married, and having no family, the question arose how they should dispose of their wealth, which ended in their determining to build a tower to the old parish church, and the device is said to represent the butler with his key, and the dairymaid with her pail, "Till death us do part:" there are sittings for about 240 persons; a few are appropriated. The register dates from the year 1536. The living is a chapelry, annexed to the rectory of Meon Stoke, tithe rent-charge here £1,007, with 13 acres of glebe, joint gross yearly value £1,079, in the gift of the Bishop of Winchester, and held since 1842 by the Rev. Charles John Hume M.A. late fellow of Wadham College, Oxford, who resides at Meon Stoke. A portion of land, about half an acre in extent, adjoining the churchyard, has been added thereto. Mourn's Charity of £3 9s. 5d. for fuel and clothing. Here is a Free Methodist chapel. F. J. Minchin esq. who is lord of the manor, and the trustees of the late John Twynam, John Twynam, Edward Moldon and John Carpenter-Garnier esq. M.A., D.L., J.P. of Rookesbury Park, Fareham, are the principal landowners. The soil is chalk, clay and loam; subsoil, gravel, chalk and flint. The chief crops are wheat and oats. The area is 5,873 acres of land and 14 of water; rateable value, £5,628; the population in 1881 was 1,097, including part of Newtown adjoining.

SOUTHAMPTON,

SOUTHAMPTON is a seaport, county, parliamentary and municipal borough, union and market town, seat of a county court, district registry of the High Court of Justice and head of a rural deanery, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, watering place, railway station, a polling place for the Southern division of the county (Hants) and a county of itself, under the designation of "the Town and County of the Town of Southampton," 75 miles from London by road, 78¾ by the London and South Western railway, 13 south-by-west from Winchester, 61 from Dorchester, 23 south-east from Salisbury, 18 north-west from Portsmouth by road and 26 by rail, 8 south-east from Romsey, 15 north-east from Lymington, 12 north from Cowes and 27 west from Chichester. To the north-east of the present town, on the opposite bank of the Itchen, where Bitterne now stands, the Romans had a military station called "Clausentum," which was succeeded by the Anglo-Saxon town of Hantune. Canute, after his establishment on the throne, made this town his occasional residence. Southampton derived its importance in Norman times from being the port of Winchester. Richard II. enlarged the castle and strengthened the fortifications which had been erected for the defence of the town and harbour. Henry V. previously to the battle of Agincourt, marshalled his army here in August, 1415, for his expedition against France, and during his stay in the town detected a conspiracy formed against him by his cousin, Richard Plantagenet, Earl of Cambridge, Henry, Lord Scroop and Sir Thomas Grey, who were executed for treason and buried in the chapel of an ancient hospital, called God's House, which is still remaining and used as a church for French Protestants. In the reign of Edward V. the town had materially increased in extent and importance, and its trade became so flourishing that the Lord Mayor of London was appointed collector of the duties at this port. Philip, King of Spain, on his arrival in England to espouse Queen Mary, landed at this port, July 20, 1554, and was entertained at the sheriff's house by the mayor and his brethren.

The ancient part of the town was formerly inclosed with walls nearly a mile and a quarter in circuit, of which considerable portions, with their ruined circular towers, are still entire, the most important being that reaching from the West Gate along the shore northward. Of the ancient gates, the principal now remaining are West Gate, South Gate and Bar Gate, in relation to which last the more modern part of the town is distinguished by the appellation of "Above Bar," from the other part, which is called High street.

When the ancient castle became the property of Lord Stafford, the tower which crowned the keep was pulled down: in 1804 the estate was purchased by Henry, third Marquess of Lansdowne K.G. who, at a considerable expense, rebuilt the castle on a large scale: on his death, 31st January, 1863, it became the property of several persons, by whom it was taken down and the materials disposed of. The site is now occupied by houses.

The town is beautifully situated on a peninsula, rising gradually from the northern shore of the Southampton Water and bounded on the east by the river Itchen, and on the south and west by a fine open estuary formed by the confluence of the Itchen with the river Test. There are two bridges across the Itchen to Bitterne (viz. Northam bridge, rebuilt upon the piles of the old wooden bridge this year, 1889, of iron and steel, with three spans, at a cost of £9,000, and Cobden Free bridge), and in addition a steam floating bridge (the Itchen ferry to Itchen, in the parish of St. Mary Extra); these communications connecting the town with the eastern bank of Southampton water. The shores of the estuary or bay are richly wooded, and afford a continuc stretch of beautifully diversified scenery, studded w villages, mansions and villas. Southampton Water, whi is about 2 miles broad at its entrance, near Colshot Cast stretches north-westward nearly 7 miles, and on the easte shore are the picturesque ruins of Netley Abbey, and on t west is the extensive and beautiful tract of country kno as the New Forest. The town is distinguished for t beauty of its situation, and is approached from the Lonc road through an avenue of stately elms across the comm The principal entrance is through the ancient Bar Gate, embattled and machicolated structure on the north front which are two gigantic figures, representing Sir Bevois Southampton and the giant Ascupart, whom, according legendary tale, Sir Bevois is said to have conquered in sin combat: this gate conducts immediately to the High stre which is more than half a mile in length and leads direc to the Quay, for the improvement of which the old Wa Gate was taken down in 1804. In the part Above Bar many fine ranges of buildings. Near the South Gate i platform for cannon, where stand twelve pieces of ordnan including an ancient gun, presented by Henry VIII. a mounted on a cast-iron carriage, the gift of the late Jo Fleming esq. formerly member for the county.

The town was first incorporated in the reign of Henry whose charter was confirmed by Richard I. and by King Jol who assigned the customs of the port to the burgesses an annual payment of £200: their privileges were extenc and confirmed by Henry VI. who constituted the tow with a surrounding district, into a county of itself, a these privileges were further modified by Charles I. T borough of Southampton is divided into five wards. T corporation consists of a mayor, recorder, sheriff and sen and junior baliffs, ten aldermen, and thirty councillors a subordinate officers, who hold quarterly sessions for t trial of offences not capital, and assizes (during the judg circuit) for capital offences, their jurisdiction extending the limits of the town and its county. Petty sessions held daily. The parliamentary borough was conterminc with the municipal borough until the passing of the "I distribution of Seats Act, 1885," when it was extended so to include the parish of Millbrook, the ecclesiastical distr of Holy Saviour, Bitterne, the parish of St. Mary Extra, a the detached portion of Hound included within St. Ma Extra. The borough returns two members to parliame Under the provisions of the Local Government Act, 18 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 41), Southampton becomes a "Cour borough" for certain purposes of that Act.

The town is well paved, lighted with gas and plentifu supplied with water. Many of the handsome iron lam posts were presented by William Chamberlayne esq. l member for the borough, in commemoration of which t inhabitants have erected a lofty cast-iron column, supporti a large gas light. The Southampton Gas Company's ma extend as far as Portswood, Stoneham, Swathling a Bishopstoke; also to Millbrook, Freemantle, Shirley, Re bridge, Eling, Bassett, Bitterne, Woolston and West End.

The street tramways, opened in 1879, extend from t Itchen floating bridge to the Southampton common, Portswood and to Shirley, and there is also a line of om buses between Southampton common and Itchen bridge.

Southampton communicates by railway with Londc Winchester, Basingstoke, Portsmouth, Gosport, Salisbu Exeter, Barnstaple and North Devon; and the Midland a South Junction line between Swindon and Andover pla Southampton in more direct connection with the Sou Wales system of railway; there is also a coast line runni rough the beautiful scenery of the New Forest from Southnpton to Bournemouth, Swanage, Lymington (from Lymgton there are steamers running to Yarmouth, Isle of 'ight), Weymouth, Portland, Dorchester and Netley. The rminus of the London and South Western railway is to the uth of the town, close to the Docks; the West End station, the Dorchester line, is on the north-west by the waterde. A direct line from Brockenhurst to Christchurch was ened in 1888 and gives direct access to Bournemouth.

The Southampton Docks (opened in 1843), situated the mouth of the river Itchen, having the natural lvantage of double tides, and practically four hours of gh water, afford every convenience for reception of the rgest ships and on account of the sheltered harbour ithin which they are, offer unusual protection against sk and casualties. These docks comprise an open dock of acres, with a depth of water of 18 feet at low water of ring tides—the average rise of tide being 13 feet, the dock tension has 1,700 feet in length of quay, with a depth of feet at low water; a close dock of 10 acres, depth of ater 28 feet; and four dry docks, the dimensions of which e as follows:—

| epth of water over blocks at neap tides | No. 1, 17; No. 2, 11; No. 3, 21; No. 4, 21 feet |

A new deep water open dock is being constructed, which ll have 26 feet of water at the lowest tides.

The railway services between Manchester and other large ntres and Southampton Docks, enable goods leaving anchester by the evening trains to be at the docks early the following morning, and on the same terms as at the ndon docks: powerful steam machinery is erected at the ading berths for rapidly lifting and shifting large and bulky ticles: cargoes of every description are landed and warehused, or forwarded by rail with great expedition; and perct communication is maintained by rail from the dock ays and warehouses to the metropolis and to the manucturing districts generally: all the principal railway comnies have representatives and agencies stationed near the cks, and large first-class steam vessels arrive from and part to the Continent daily. The quays have extensive nded and free warehouses for every description of valuable erchandise, and below these are spacious vaults for wines d spirits; there are also sheds approved by H.M. Customs cargoes in transit, and ample convenience for the storing d quick delivery of grain and timber, and approved commodation is provided for the cattle trade with foreign rts and the Channel Islands. This is the only port in the ngdom providing for quarantine for foreign cattle.

The offices of the Dock Company are at 19 Bishopsgate reet within, London; and Dock House, Southampton. All mmunications as to rates and on dock business should be dressed to the Secretary and Superintendent at Southapton.

The Royal Victoria Pier, which projects into the estuary m the south-west angle of the quays in a slightly curved e, is a structure of wood, 1,000 feet in length and 36 in eadth, and is accessible for steam vessels at all periods of e tide: the town quay, facing the end of High street, is a ore extensive structure. It is intended shortly to erect a ore capacious passenger pier.

The new uniform system of buoyage in the harbour has en adopted at this port. The depth of water, according recent survey, has increased several feet within a century. Steam navigation has added considerably to the importance Southampton, whence passengers embark for the Isle of ight, Jersey, Guernsey, The Clyde, Dublin, Belfast, Cork d other Irish ports, Falmouth, London, Plymouth, Liverol, St. Malo, Granville, Cherbourg, Honfleur, Havre, ntwerp, Bremen, Hamburg, to all parts of the Mediterran, the Peninsula and the East and West Indies, Cape, ustralia, Brazil, River Plate, Japan, the Pacific, New York d other places. The trade of Southampton is very conderable, embracing coastwise the Channel Islands, the conent, Northern Europe, and nearly every part of the world.

ORDNANCE SURVEY OFFICE.—This establishment, which ne head quarters of the Ordnance Survey of the United gdom, where all the plans and maps of Great Britain engraved, zincographed and printed, is situated at the h entrance of the town, near the Avenue. The resident ers of the survey are Col. Sir Chas. W. Wilson K.C.B., M.G., F.R.S., R.E. assisted by Col. G. H. Bolland, Lieut.- Farquharson, Majors F. P. Washington and C. R. der, and Captains H. R. Sankey, M. Elrington Bisset and E. Haynes, Royal Engineers. The staff employed at the office consists of clerks, draughtsmen, engravers, photographers, calculators, printers and mechanics, in all (including both Royal Engineers and civilians), about 900 persons. The total force employed on the surveys of Great Britain and Ireland (inclusive of four companies of Royal Engineers) amounts to about 2,500 persons. The Ordnance Surveys, published by Government, are on the scales of 25 inches, 6 inches and one inch to a mile, with plans of large towns on the scale of 5 feet or 10 feet to a mile.

The Southampton Savings Bank was established in 1816: the business was carried on for several years at the Guildhall; afterwards removed to a house in Portland street; and finally the present building in West Marlands was erected and opened in January, 1861.

The Theatre, in French street, is now closed: the Royal York Pavilion Music Hall is in Above Bar. The Prince of Wales Royal Theatre, Above Bar, was opened in June, 1883, and is capable of holding about 1,400 persons. The Royal Victoria Assembly Rooms, situated at the bottom of Portland terrace, are elegantly fitted.

The Royal Southampton Yacht Club, situated on the west side of Above Bar street at the junction of Ogle road and Manchester street, is a spacious three-storeyed building of dark red brick, with terra cotta dressings in the Domestic Gothic style, from the designs of Mr. W. H. Mitchell, architect, of Southampton: the interior comprises dining room, library, reading, chess, card and billiard rooms, and the usual offices, and is intended for the use of 1,000 members.

The Royal Southern Yacht Club, situated on the Town quay, was established in 1844; the present club house was opened in August, 1846: there are many yachts belonging to the members of the club: the regattas take place in July or August, when several prizes are sailed for.

H.M.S. "Trincomalee" lies off the Town pier, in Southampton Water, and is used as a training ship for the Royal Navy Reserve, commander, Frederick Edwards.

The Royal South Hants Infirmary, situated in Fanshawe street, and erected in 1838, is an extensive structure in the Italian style, and contains over 100 beds: attached to the building is a beautiful chapel in the Perpendicular style, erected in 1858 by Dr. Oke, with part of the money entrusted to him for charitable purposes by the late Miss Dowling: Mrs. Osborn, widow of Dr. John Osborn, endowed a cot in perpetuity at this infirmary, in memory of her husband, at a cost of £600. The yearly average of inpatients is about 1,000, and of out-patients 2,620; the income, arising from investments, subscriptions and donations, is about £4,000 a year. A new out-patients' building has been added this year (1889).

The Hants Female Orphan Asylum, Park road, was originated 1837, at a cost of £1,600; a wing was added in 1887 at a cost of about £2,000: it is maintained for the education, board and lodging of 100 poor orphan girls from 7 to 16 years of age, and is supported by subscriptions.

The Dispensary, New road, with which is incorporated the Provident Medical Institution and Humane Society was established in 1823, and the Provident branch added in 1877: the annual number of patients under treatment is about 8,209, with 855 dental cases; and there are about 7,620 provident members.

'HBOURNE-ON-SEA is a watering place, about :s south from Christchurch station by way of Tuckton and 3½ east from Bournemouth. It was a part of the rish of Pokesdown, within the original limits of the of Christchurch. A separate ecclesiastical district igned to it in 1887 and named the district chapelry Catherine: it includes the hamlet of Tuckton. St. ne's church is a stone building not yet (1889) com- and at present consists of temporary chancel and it is designed to hold 600 persons, the present accom- on being for 300. The register dates from the year The living is a vicarage, yearly value £165, derived from offertory, in the gift of 5 trustees, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Lawrence Robert Whigham M.A., LL.B. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Southbourne is being developed into a watering place; a substantial sea wall of concrete has been constructed, 9 feet high from the beach, and having a roadway and esplanade 80 feet wide on a level with the top, and a central approach 100 feet wide by an easy gradient down to the parade; these works were constructed under the supervision of Mr. Smith, resident engineer to the Southbourne Land Company, and opened in September, 1885. The pier, the property of the Southbourne Pier Company Limited, was opened in August, 1888; it is about 300 feet in length with a breadth of 30 feet, and forms a pleasant promenade. The cost of erection was about £4,000; Archibald Smith esq. of this place, was the architect. A chalybeate spring was discovered near the beach in excavating the foundations for the sea wall and esplanade which has a saline deposit; it is considered that the water if properly diluted may have a very beneficial effect on some diseases. Here is a coast-guard station for 1 officer & 8 men, William Pennington, officer.
